His musical influences include the many "desert rock" bands he saw locally as well as up the road in Phoenix. Jon attended the University of Arizona, where he minored in music. The program focused primarily on Classical genres; in fact, Jon supported himself by singing in the chorus for the Arizona Opera Company for a couple of seasons. Today, Jon lives in Northeast Florida and his musical style is a unique blend of intuitive songwriting and educated composition. He particularly enjoys writing bios about himself in the third person! Folio Weekly 12/14/04 Jackie Baird "Murphy is an accomplished guitarist who knows how to create simple rock charts without complicating matters." Connect Savannah 5/4/05 Jim Reed "Murphy's songs are practically screaming for the full-on rock band treatment. Many of the arrangements are tailor-made for the dynamic shifts and finishing touches that a muscular backing group could offer."
