Details: This beautiful collection of acoustic material forms all ten tracks as performed at the 'Fete de la Musique Festival 2008.' The 'Day of Music' festival was held in Luddenden village, Yorkshire, England on the 21st June - a day that although swamped by rainfall was a day that would never be forgotten - and performed in the real ale drinking den aptly called 'The Lord Nelson' a favourite haunt of Patrick 'Bramwell' Bronte himself. The Fete de la Musique, a national event in France is the only day when performing musicians can make as much noise as they wish without legal consequence and is fast becoming a worldwide global calendar event. Luddenden gave Great Britain the first ever 'Fete de la Musique' to be held beyond the English capital, London. This album is a purchase that you will not regret. Enjoy! What have people said so far? 'I bet lots of people say that but you've got an amazing voice, really intense - wow!' AND 'your music is inspired,' it was "simple and sincere - Fresh magic in a choking, dusty world" Audience feedback - Cowling House Concerts 'Jonathan is a thoughtful and intelligent lyric writer and a superb musician. His voice ranges from Cat Stevenesque right through to smoky blues.' Richard Hollis. The Unofficial Steeleye Span Website 'Jonathan who has real talent has identified the crimes that are committed in our name. The songs are beautiful and the cause a worthy one' Tony Benn. British Politician, Author Anti-War Activist. 'Visited your website, downloaded the album (Debut - The Collection) and liked what I heard very much. I've put a little plug for it onto The Folk Corporation's forum.' Barry talkawhile/ 'Jonathan comes from a very talented family and talented he is!' The Country Star Page 'He has a fabulous voice, really rich and resonant and full of emotion, very distinctive.' State Of Undress. 'You sound like the UK

Vissotzky - accentuating on messages and lyrics, not only the music which is good.' Kiril Zdravkov.
