Sci-Fi Garage Punk Rock 16 MP3 Songs ROCK: Psychedelic, ROCK: 80's Rock Details: Pudding Attack is a strange trio band without a guitarist. Chris sings and works electronics, Robb plays bass, and Dan plays synth. Review of a Live Pudding Attack Show. by Cody James If you didn't see the show on May 8th at the Conservatory you missed out my friends. It was "the show." The night started out like any other night, but ended in bloodshed. On the second song in the set Chris decided to jump off his synth amp. In doing this he split his head open on the metal rafter. But, in true Pudding Attack spirit the show went on. And, cause Chris is a badass. The show went right on with a few instruemental failures, but still awesome. During the last song, luckily, Robb's bass fucked up and needed to be thrown into an amp. So, he did. Then the guitar exacted revenge by bouncing off the amp and slicing Robb's eye open. Did he just stop and lay there like a bitch? No he continued to kick the make out of the bass and bleed profusely. After the show many kudos were given and no stitches. Kaptain Kamikaze's thoughts: I don't think the blood was part of the show. But if it were pancakes instead of blood, oh man. -Kaptain Kamikaze
