Details: This band began with love...The love of Eric Denton and Dan McIntock. Boy how they loved jamming tunes together. So much so that it eventually turned in to a regular thing called "My Folks". Soonafter, as most couples do, the duo decided it was time to take it to the next level, so they had a giant man-baby and named him Casey Teate. They raised him to play music and to fill their two part harmonies with yet another, in to that which would thence forth become three hereafter. So that was great, but the relationship was still missing a little bing bang boom. So the trifecta put an ad out on Matchand got hooked up with the likes of Tim Grisnik whom ironically had already been playing drums with Dan in another band for years. What are the chances?! I mean I've heard that website really does work, but wow. Tim was formally asked to join the family at which time he replied, "No", and then "yes" and then followed up with a , "we'll see". Within 12 mintues Tim was bribed in to the band with a bag of pretzels and a 1984 Darryl Strawberry rookie baseball card and the foursome hasn't looked back since, much. And if they have it was only to see what was behind them. Which is understandable.
