A sophisticated blend of acoustic instrumentation and progressive electronic elements forging an impactful, innovative sound. Wade's voice is the unifying factor in the music, his heartfelt instrument is a raging and compassionate muse that blends style and emotion unlike any other, at one moment both prayerful and raging he disarms the mind and accesses the heart of the heart. Wade McCollum grew up on the road. His father is a drummer and Wade was born into the life of a travelling gypsy band tribe. Conceived in "Foolish Pleasure" (the band), later they joined "Reflections" and then "Tracer." Wade spent his early childhood years on a mad unconventional adventure traipsing from town to town in a sparkling green 1978 Dodge van, ala Scooby Doo. His parents are intrepid loving souls who encouraged Wade to go to the edge, challenge the status quo and always speak the truth. Wade's music is an open letter to the world. His unique perspective and sound come from his unusual upbringing. His honesty and individuality permeate every note on "Beauty Is A Streetlight," whether melodically screaming for the pain of those caught in the horrors of war, or wailing a prayerful love song, his voice conveys his love for humanity and passion for peace. Wade speaks the truth about the gravity of our global situation, yet somehow assures us that we are going to make it through.
