Haunting and introspective melodic pop music that travels to the furthest corners of your soul 8 MP3 Songs POP: Delicate, FOLK: Folk Pop Details: Loni began her musical career in high school singing with some local kids who's older brother owned a recording studio. She started vocal lessons with the Masterwork Choral foundation in Morristown, NJ and continued on to Berklee College of Music where she studied vocal performance. After moving to New York City to further her musical career, Loni studied at Mannes College of Music, the New School Guitar Studies Center and with numerous vocal teachers including Juilliard graduate Mary Feinsinger. She has performed in various venues around New York City including: The Bitter End, The Living room, The Cutting Room, the C Note, CB's Gallery and the Knitting Factory. A former member of the Nashville Songwriters Association, she was accepted into their annual song camp studying with hit songwriters, John Ims, Angela Kasset, Ralph Murphy and most notably Hugh Prestwood. Loni has participated in various conferences and seminars including the Songwriters Expo in Los Angeles, the Philadelphia Music Conference, the Guitar Institute songwriter's workshop in Nashville, Tennessee, SXSW in Austin, Texas, and the Independent Music Forum. In the Fall of 2001 Loni was chosen to participate in the BMI professional songwriter's workshop. With the guidance of producer Godfrey Diamond, Loni produced a three song demo of original music. One of her songs "Forever" received an award of merit from the Unisong International Song Contest. With the help of some friends, the demo tape found its way to music industry veteran and well known concert promoter, Ron Delesner whose encouragement inspired Loni to continue writing and to go on to complete her latest cd, PIECES produced in 2000 by Steve Dwire. Loni is currently performing around New York City and writing new material for her second cd. Loni was recently seen on a Fox Five Network television special segment on Paul Colby and the Bitter End. You can view the segment on her website lonipont.com. Email Loni at
