Native American Flute Acoustic Guitar 10 MP3 Songs WORLD: Native American, EASY LISTENING:

Mood Music Details: It all started back in 1991 when Darren was given a flute while at work, He left for home later that day, only to place the flute as a display piece within the home at which he lived at for 13 years now. A year had passed by, in the early spring, Darren decided to sit up during the late night hours working on his native regalia for the upcoming years' events such as powwows, celebrations, and ceremonies. Continuously working thru the late night hours, the Sun was about to rise. It was then he decided to grab his coat and hat, walk down to the lake and present an offering to the spirits that has guided him throughout his life. While in the house yet, he noticed the flute on display, he then grabbed it and decided to check it out. In those early morning hours, birds were starting to chirp n' sing. Beavers swimming near by, fish jumping out of the water, and ducks swimming nearby. He then made his offering and prayed thanking the creator for everything that is dear to him and for others to be healed or helped out in ways that are needed. At that moment, Darren had heard singing coming from nowhere only to find himself closing his eyes and listening to the distant sounds. Honing in by listening, he had found himself looking out into the middle of the lake. He soon recognized that the eerie sounds were coming from a loon. Shortly after that he had picked up the flute, realizing the possibility of mimicking the loon. It was then his world would turn in to a whole new direction, as he began to play his flute, he had closed his eyes and suddenly he felt as if his spirit had left him passing thru the barrel of the flute for the entire duration of this song. "It was more of an awakening", as he describes, he now knew the term of becoming one with our mother earth along with all the four legged animals, our feathered friends and the fish. They all seemed to understand one another, including himself. For only a moment, he seen through his very eyes what the spirit world must look like, absolutely beautiful! As the water temprature rises, the fog begins to clear, Darren then returns to the house wondering what had just happened. Later that week, he had spoke of this experience to one of his elders. A week had passed, one particular elder had told him that he sat up all night not knowing what was to come, that this was a gift he was about to recieve from the spirits, a gift his late step-father mentioned to him 5 years earlier before his unexpected illness took his life, in 1986. So for this to happen, he dedicates this story to Ed A. Bearheart Sr. Both of them share the same given indian name "Ogemabenez" (O-Gee-Mah-Bay-Nes) which means "KingEagle".
