Sometimes an emotion is captured perfectly through a song. Sometimes you hear music and instantaneously connect with it. Seth Bradley has the uncanny ability to do all of the above through his music. People say, "It just makes sense to me." It should make sense. In the short time that Seth has actively performed, he's impressed thousands of fans. He has performed at some of the Chicago's best venues and numerous other places all across the Midwest. People dream their whole lives to open for national acts, play at the House of Blues and the Aragon Ballroom; Seth accomplished these and more in less than 2 years. A powerful and energetic voice, strong songwriting and a full band lend themselves perfectly to a pop/rock sound that people of all ages remember from first listen. It's no surprise, then, that Seth is no stranger to music. From age 7, when he would write and record songs on a tape deck in his room, through high school and college, music has always been at the forefront of his life. He's played guitar since age 15, a choir and drama background developed his signature voice, and in the Varsity Men's Glee Club at the University of Illinois, he was proved one of the top vocalists on campus. In the summer of 2008, Seth is releasing a new EP, recorded at Chicago Recording Company. With local producer Stefan Clark (who assisted in producing projects for MIMS and Bang City), as well as a Grammy-nominated team of engineers behind the project, expect the new record to be an outstanding representation of his talent, and a taste of big things to come.
