They created a music style that combines ethnic elements with jazz improvisations, a style which is known as "Balkan jazz". However, their compositions are not restricted to one musical genre. They keep searching their ways through the pluralism of their musical environment and the common memories which are carried throughout time and space. Their music is characterized by originality, adaptability and emotional strength. They therefore form a creative and at the same time modern musical identity. Their debut album "Some time Now" is out now on Melissamusic. It is produced by George Pentzikis.
