From deep tranquil dreams to strong turbulent emotions, this new and fresh album reflects a life through the sympathetic keys of a piano. 15 MP3 Songs CLASSICAL: Traditional, CLASSICAL: New Age Details: "A piece of music is like a saying: you can either learn from it, or you can discard it as just another phrase. This album mirrors my thoughts and emotions through an instrument, in the hope that it will function as a proverb to those who hear it. The first and last four pieces were all composed over the last few years whereas 'Childhood' (tracks five to eleven) was composed roughly when I was thirteen years old, thus making it literally a musical projection of that stage in my life. You may feel identified with it, you may find it passable or you may not like it at all; but in the end, all the pieces on this album are mere reflections. Reflections on a piano." D.P. David Portugheis was born in London in 1987 to a family of musicians, including a pianist, a violist and two opera singers. Though mostly self-taught he has studied composition at the Guildhall School of Music Drama, the London College of Music and Media, and the Conservatorio Nacional de Buenos Aires in Argentina, where he currently resides. He is an aspiring film composer and currently continues his studies privately with Argentine composer Juan Carlos Figueiras.
