We play pop songs that rock and rock songs that pop. We also play covers, ditties, ballads, and the occasional chantey. We play skee ball and Scrabble, too. We are a very talented band. We (mostly) live in Brooklyn, but we are originally from different places. Heather is from Alaska. It is a very big state. It is also very cold. Alaska is very big and very cold. Heather sings. She sings about escaping snow and intolerable people, among other things. She also sings show tunes, but she wont sing them on stage unless you ask her nicely. Annie is from the greater Los Angeles area, which is a nice way of saying the Valley. She is classically trained in piano, but she is self-trained in rock and roll. She plays the keyboards and the glockenspiel simultaneously. That means at the same time! Andy is from the tri-state areayou can pick whatever three states youd like. He is either a guitarist who plays with architecture, or an architect who plays bass. Andy can grow a full beard in one hour. Jeff is from Pottsville, Pennsylvania, which is home to the oldest brewery in America. It was started 65 million years ago by dinosaurs. Jeff plays drums. If you listen closely you can hear influences of disco underneath a heavy layer of prehistoric beer. Last Known Settlers combines rock and pop with an extra helping of fun and mischief. Please make sure your volume is set to "rock". Thank you.
