Details: "My name is Dan Paul. That's my first and middle name. We go by both where I'm from. I'm country like that. "I am an artist. I draw pictures, write stories, sing songs. I moved from Dallas to New York City with my best friend Teresa Nasty. I like to collaborate with other artists to create new bits of beauty in this world. I believe that all artmaking is a collaboration. We're here in our right-now selves, picking up messages from the eternal. Like collaborating with God. It's what keeps me going. "I believe. I believe in Love. I believe in Magick. I believe in faeries and ghosts and past lives and Jesus and Buddha and all that. I believe that anything can happen and that we control our own destinies (even though, at times, life can feel like it's going strongly against our wishes). I believe in you, and I believe in the power of consciousness to create new realities. First, of course, we must believe. Without that foundation, even stone fortresses are bound to fall apart. "When I sing, I feel like I'm disappearing, connecting with multiple realities simultaneously. It can feel like an out-of-body experience, like I'm looking down at the crown of my head, sounds resounding in my skull, emotions slowed down to movements, the orchestra swelling in the background as tears well up in my eyes. I love it. It makes life feel so worth it."
