A world fusion of Latin rhythms, jazz and flamenco with infectious and gorgeous soulful melodies. 11 MP3 Songs

WORLD: World Fusion, LATIN: Latin Jazz

Details: This Ain't Rio is a lush fusion of beautiful ethnic influenced songs with its roots still firmly grounded in the urban surroundings of the UK from where the band originate . A rich production that still captures the rawness and energy of Lament live. Featuring 11 stunning new songs with guest appearances from jazz maestro Liz Ralls on trumpet, This Ain't Rio takes you on a rollercoaster ride of emotions embracing influences from world music with hints of Jazz and soulful mesmerising vocals. An intoxicating aural journey that sweeps you away to another place. Singer Kath Kimber, guitarists Ant McTiffen and Michael Melbourne and drummer/percussionist Tom Haines splendidly exhibit their understanding of modern Latin and Spanish jazz over 11 cuts of acoustic driven rhythm. True musicality breathes through every track and makes for an enthralling aural experience.

lament.info Musician Magazine, Spring 2007 A new CD from Lament is always welcome; I mean if ever a band deserves the phrase, Whats not to like then surely it is Kenilworths Lament. They have been picking up some well-deserved media attention of late (including BBC Coventry Warwickshires Band of the Month). I doubt if a Lament article has ever been written yet that didnt use the word Latin. Its hardly rocket science to deduce that there is a huge element of the Latin feel to their sound. Though theres always more to this quartet than just latin! Indeed The albums opener Cool took me right back to the jazz/folk sound of the mighty Pentangle (another outfit who had no fear of musical cross pollinisation). Having said that the Latin fans will be happy with this new offering. Theres plenty of clever fretwork and laid-back grooves on this disc, though offering a much less frantic mood from their previous albums. That could be the effect of the band having slimmed down from a six-piece to a four piece in recent years. Set around Kath Kimber irresistibly smooth vocals, Lament have little trouble in creating some delicious sound-scapes. Track three Feed Me, is divine and probably my favourite track on the album. Acoustic guitar at its base, it moves along quite deliciously, with its jazz influence unashamedly on show. Other tracks included on this terrific album are; This Aint Rio, No Excuse is Good Enough, This Is For You, Faster, Impossible 2B Loved, Come Home Soon, Days Go By and Where Did the Dreams Go? Pete Chambers, BBC music journalist and author (Godiva Rocks The Two Tone Trail) Fronted by Kath Kimber, Lament are a fourpiece lounge jazz group that offer more than a nod towards latin infusions. For the size of band they are they box above their weight in terms of the depth of sound and score bonus points for managing to blend the distinct tone of a float into a number of their cuts. Jazz needs a certain something to take it from the elevator and into the lounge. "This Ain't Rio", packs all that's necessary to do that job. It's got bucketloads of atmosphere and a vibe that sits just above the groove and ensures that there is plenty of reward for listening. FATEA magazine beautiful stuff, absolutely brilliant.. Jimmy Franks, BBC Radio West Midlands Lament, Ive seen them live and they are absolutely fantastic! Vic Minnett, BBC Radio Coventry and Warwickshire its times like this when I really love my job(taken from live session on the Anita Miah radio show) Anita Miah, BBC Radio Coventry and Warwickshire You guy's get better every time I hear you, which is saying something as you were amazing to start off with. The vibe on Saturday was just right. I can hardly wait till the next Liquid gig. DJ Rossi, Liquid saw you guys at liquid last week. Absolutely fantastic, loved the vibe, great tunes Lament fan I love the Jazz influence of some of Kath's singing, a touch of Krall but very disitinctive Dianne Nemes, executive producer, ITV
