" -Not Lame "...their latest release, The Band with the Golden Arm, proves that they are in top form. ..Together, these guys roll through 10 rockin' gems over the course of their new album in very impressive fashion." -Music Monthly "... skillful and well-representative of the genre... a fine slice o' pop music from a band who has always known how to do it." -David Bash, Amplifier Magazine These are press excerpts from the previous album, "Arrival" (also available from cdbaby): "...bright melodies and lovingly crafted arrangements are bound to please fans of such revered pop stylists as Squeeze (clever lyrics), Jellyfish (bouncy organ riffs) and even Gin Blossoms (occasional rueful twang). -Washington Post "...well-written, taut power pop songs with a kind of Jellyfish-meets-the Tories vibe..." -David Bash, International Pop Overthrow "Power-Popsters bounce and jangle admirably through sunny, percussive gems. After their debut release showed a proficient tendency to mimic, delightfully, Tommy Keene, RTW step into their own light and leave most of the more obvious starting points of their sound behind and deliver a mini-tour-de-force, extremely pleasing second effort. ... certainly a lot of Matthew Sweet/Tommy Keene's influence still seeps

in (and ain't nuthin' wrong with that, folks!), all one hears on the landscape of this consistently enjoyable disc is a super-highway of monstrously catchy hooks, purely pop song craft and impressive vocals." - Not

Warehouse doesn't waste any time establishing its credentials as a bona fide power pop band on its latest album, Arrival.... ...a polished disc that will stand the test of time for pop/rock listeners." - Eric
