"Let's Rock!" is the fun, wholesome, adventure album that can entertain the whole family. Michael E. Thomas, a guitarist and vocalist from New Jersey, who's best selling 1997 children's album "Summerland" earned him appearances on TV shows "The Today Show", "New Jersey Live" with Lee Leonard, and others, as well as NBC, ABC and CBS following performances at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Michael's musical work for children living with autism, has led to the development of many songs on "Let's Rock". His songs are used to teach motor skills and basic academics. The 13 songs were recorded and produced by Michael E. Thomas in Northern Ireland with Irish musicians, James Blennerhassett on bass and Peter McKinney on drums. Mastered by UE Nastasi at Sterling Sound, NYC. Michael has toured his children's entertainment show throughout the Northeast of America from 1994 to 2001 performing over 100 shows per year. Michael continues to perform his Miles of Smiles Show for children at family concerts and festivals such as The Queen's Golden Jubilee in Belfast 2002 to Mayor's Day Celebrations throughout the country. The Miles of Smiles Show is sure to bring smiles for miles and miles. "An interactive musical show, lots of fun!", Barnes Noble, New Jersey "Plenty of fun for young children, high energy show.", The Leader, N. Ireland "Great fun for all ages!", Holiday News, N. Ireland Radio- "Popcorn" added to "We like kids" radio playlist in Alaska. (July 2006) "Michael Thomas is leading a conga line of kids through a tunnel at the Magic Jungle in Collegeville, Pa. Like the Pied Piper with a guitar instead of flute he snakes the line around the dance floor, bypassing the ball pit and eventually through the audience of parents. When the song ends the kids are giggling and wiggling all over the dance floor." "What makes him extra-special to his young fans is that he writes much of his own material in a rock-n-roll-Saturday morning tv-style that tells a story and you can dance to it.", T.G. Rasmussen, The Township Voice, Chester, Pennsylvania
