Contemporary folk: acoustic music with an edge. 9 MP3 Songs FOLK: Alternative Folk, ROCK: Folk Rock
Details: Jeni Magana has been playing upright bass since she was 14. She was classically trained and performed in several symphony orchestras and chamber groups in California. At age 18, she picked up and moved across the country to attend Berklee College of Music and has played several successful shows as a freelance bassist and singer, notably making several appearances with the Dropkick Murphy's on their past few tours and most recent album. Jeff Fettig has been playing the guitar since he was 15 and played with several bands around the San Francisco area including shows with then local The Matches and Plain White T's. While at Berklee College of Music, he formed a rock group that played several shows in the area. After a year of rock'n'roll, he realized he missed the sounds of acoustic music and so he picked up his acoustic guitar and started working on a new repertoire of songs. True to the personalities of both members, the music they write deals with some serious subjects, but always with wit, humor, and a wisdom a little beyond their years. They manage to embody the best of folk, pop, classical, and rock in what they like to call "epic 3 minute pop songs." The Polaroid Truth has been steadily gaining a following from coast to coast and leaving their mark, one person at a time. Visit thepolaroidtruth.com for more information.
