These boys from Portland, Oregon, draw spiritual influence from the greats of American music and have crafted a sound that's as much at home on an Appalachian back porch as it is in honky tonk barrooms. The quartet delivers alternative country that kicks ass in the 21st century but hearkens back to 70's radio. Moonshine Hangover is the soundtrack that was blasting from the stereo of your big brother's jacked-up Camaro as he cruised the main drag with his best girl riding shotgun and his best buddy, Todd, passed out in the backseat with a bottle of Jim Beam and a smoldering roach. "Moonshine Hangover's gut-bucket country gallops along at rock speed with boozy bluegrass-esque vocal harmonies extolling the glories of hayseed life" -- Willamette Week "Moonshine Hangover is pure southern fried rock. Although they stomp out whiskey soaked songs with a tough as nails exterior, upon further inspection, they show the writer filled with the lament and regret of the morning after" --PabstBlueRibbon.com "Hardcore Americana... take no prisoners" -- The Oregonian "The ragged edge of country. An outlaw Bakersfield sound that needs a chicken wire curtain and a drunken country fried mob to seem at home" -- SwingandCountry.com For more info and a listing of live dates visit: moonshinehangover.com
