Details: The Lennings are an Austin-based quintet of wordsmiths and pragmatists. On the surface, their songs spin tales of inanimate objects and peculiar interactions, but underneath is something completely unrelated. The Lennings pull music apart and put it back together in a different order. With lyrics where the mundane unfolds into deeper currents of meaning, and the introspective becomes public around simple objects, The Lennings produce a sound that beckons soulful nakedness. (They also call for a demise of any high criticism that might coin a phrase like 'soulful nakedness'.) -Ben Miller, New South Wales University "Essentially, listening to this record will result in immediate obsession and audiences should prepare to be both fascinated and aurally wooed."

-Glide Magazine Their debut album, Big Beige Car, prowls the streets offolk and mellow Americana with a sense of humor, making a detour through some dreamy pedal steel and banjo. -Austin Chronicle The longing we associate with the slide (guitar) permeates this album, although there are enough sly nods and language play to stave off depression. -Austin Sound Quitepossiblythegreatestbandever. -Rolling Stone Magazine
