Experience your own worldly visions in the dark with this lush, soothing, serene and mysterious music. Hypnotic, romantic and ethereal soundworlds to melt into. Steve Roach, Kevin Breheny, and Tangerine Dream fans will love this CD. ----- Review from MusicTap It is good when independently produced works, those that lack even the alternative label support, spring up and show some bite. Dan Pound, whose self-released Impressions is a collection of Tangerine Dream/ Steve Roach/vidna Obmana-like soundscapes that employ the same spacey sounds, all generated by computers. If a suggestion can be offered it is this, with ambient works, the usage of themes, even if not implied, push the music further and is longer lasting. Impressions uses an Altoids-like approach in that you can pull out a tune for the moment and enjoy the effect that it supplies.
