Details: Listening to "Paint the Ponies" is like watching a western film with the picture turned off, chasing americana over into cowboy&western, fusing spaghetti western influences into country, swing, pop and rock settings...a modern western soundtrack from big sky country to scorched desert, driftin' past roundups and roadhouses on the trail through the New West. Rounding up some influences hereabouts from--legends John Fogerty and Doug Sahm--40s cowboy singer Ray Whitley(he wrote "Back in the Saddle Again")---obscure hillbilly honkytonker Lattie Moore--the Beat Farmers--Ray Price and the Cherokee Cowboys--Junior Brown--Long Ryders--Buck AND Don--HANK, sorry no seniors or juniors, just HANK by God--and of course Ennio Morricone--all filtered through an episode of "Rawhide" is where the roundup begins with GENUINE COWHIDE whose second cd "Paint the Ponies"...a modern vision of the future of traditional, modern and alternative Cowboy Western music written and performed roots/pop style by a seasoned Texas roadhouse band that likes to tear it up once in a while. From shuffle-twostep-swing-rockablilly into spaghetti western pop and desert instrumental themes from screenplays not yet written...think BR-549 meets the Sons of the Pioneers in a dusty cowtown on Saturday night and buys'em a beer after a Sergio Leone triple feature....
