Using the arts to help children learn to read, MUSIC is at the core of their approach. The music is recorded on four CDs, and offers over 42 toe-tapping, fun-filled, songs and raps to capture the ears of children -- guaranteed to put a giggle in your gizzard. Each sound of the alphabet (plus ch, sh, th, and ng) is enunciated to a toe-tapping sound track and followed by an original song, written to feature each targeted letter of the alphabet. The songs feature Jim Post, who wrote and sang a number-one hit in the 60s: "Reach Out of the Darkness," under the label, Friend and Lover. These 4 CDs are part of an entire curriculum that features a teacher's manual, a song book (containing detailed dance movements -- some children learn by moving -- and musical notation and lyrics for every song), and 30 stories -- one for every letter of the alphabet, plus ch, sh, th, and ng. Hundreds of schools and parents are using this new multisensory, musical approach and seeing unbelievable success.
