Colour My World, Robert Cox Passows second CD explores pop, classical and ambient sounds in a soothing journey from longing to fulfillment. Is there a story in the songs? Maybe. The music is a soundtrack for your meditations and imaginings. However, for your consideration, I have a few thoughts about the program. Somewhere In America Theres A Street Named After My Dad was written and first recorded by Was/Not Was. The lyrics describe a utopia where everyone is loved and respected for who they are; not what they look like, whom they worship, or whom they love; where there are no drug dealers, no assassins, no saber-tooth neighbors, just plain simple folks in a rainbow of flavors.

The title track, a hit by Chicago, closes the program: now that youre here colour my world with hope.
