Ambient music inspired by the inner and outer worlds. 12 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Ambient, ELECTRONIC: Soundscapes Details: The title Hidden Music comes from the age-old idea that natural places and phenomenon withhold an underlying order, energy, and beauty that can be perceived and subsequently experienced emotionally by the human observer. Although the musical treatments herein are generally inspired by the natural environment itself, some are inspired by other abstract concepts of the human experience. My primary intent for this music is to facilitate a meditative process. These instrumental compositions were written and recorded during the second half of the year 2007. Final production was completed in the first two months of 2008. I used some of the latest technology available to create the recordings. The use of high technology provides a nearly unlimited amount of creative possibilities, but at the same time can complicate the process and become a limiting factor. Overall, I opted for a minimalistic approach to composition and production. I make use of ambient drones, textures, and sounds that are harmonic and rarely atonal. The melodic structures originate from somewhere within the deeper realms of my own consciousness. As with any creative endeavor, the final product can evolve into something completely different than what was planned or artistically intended. That may very well be the case here. Regardless of my own artistic intent, I hope that you will experience these musical treatments of sound in what ever way is spontaneous and intuitive for you.
