Time, in its most infinite and limitless existence swallows often the cries of those who are affected by it. On occasion we are reminded that life is tangible and the lives that we read about and glamorize are no different than that of an average person. Who represents the people? The average, hard working souls that seek to escape their lives and forget their own situations in order to indulge in a fantasy created by entertainment, not artists. Who chronicles these stories? On occasion, moments, periods, and decades are marked forever by those souls who have lived and battled within it. These are the souls that give their lives and creativity to change art in life for the better. Yet another has begun this journey, his name is Jonz. Arriving to Atlanta special delivery from Cincinnati, Ohio, Jonz has captured crowds with both simple and elaborate performances. Combining his skills as a self taught guitarist with his innate ability to compose music and write songs, Jonz revitalizes the art behind the music. His songs provide heartfelt images of reality which enable his audiences to reflect on love, life, pain and the lessons learned from each. Although unique in style one can't help but to reminisce on familiar vocal textures displayed by D'Angelo, Prince, Lenny Kravitz and his many other influences. This wide range is reflective in the variety of artists that Jonz has opened for from Dionne Farris to Darius Rucker, to Doug E. Fresh. From his first big performance on Showtime at the Apollo to shows at the House of Blues Foundation Room and The Joint in Las Vegas, Jonz has been gracing stages including those of Eddie's Attic and Club 1150 in Atlanta. No venue is too big or too small for Jonz's melodies and set for the release of his first full length album "Saying Things", Jonz's rendez-vous with the masses is upon us.
