His music meanders through a growing disenchantment with the "way things are" toward the edges of what could be. He writes with a loose, comfy style that harbors dreamers and thinkers, yet maintains a lyrical substance that stirs a passion for life and change. His first album came out in January 2009 and he is a frequent performer in coffee shops, wineries, restaurants, and churches throughout the northwest. So sit down with a cup of coffee and enjoy a smooth tune and a deep, growing mystery, as told through rhythm and hummed by the soul.
