Details: Charm City Sound, Marylands most celebrated contemporary polka band, was formed in 1997. Although the original members all hailed from the Baltimore area, current players reside in Maryland, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. Leader Mike Matousek, is the last remaining connection to the bands musical predecessor, the nationally-recognized Boys from Baltimore band that originated in 1980. The Boys received many major awards including Favorite Album and Favorite Band by the United States Polka Association (USPA) and was featured in Paramounts major motion picture, He Said, She Said starring Kevin Bacon and Elizabeth Perkins. Over the last ten years, Charm City Sound has recorded six CDs, performed at major festivals across the country, and appeared on several TV shows. CCS has continued the award-winning tradition by garnishing its own recognition that includes the USPAs Favorite Song (2001) and Favorite Band (2003) awards. Even the Baltimore City Paper voted the group as Baltimores Best Polka Band in 2002. Charm City Sound has distinguished itself as one of the innovators within the polka musical genre as they infuse Rock, Pop, Country, and Latin influences into the music that was born in Eastern Europe. Most of the material in their repertoire is original. They are one of several national groups leading the way to broaden the polka audience with a contemporary style referred to as Push. The current version of Charm City Sound features two trumpets, sax/clarinet, accordion, concertina, keyboards, bass and drums, with four members sharing the vocals.
