ROCK: Acoustic, POP: Folkly Pop Details: JEFFREY ALLEN A native of South Florida, Jeffrey Allen's professional career began in 1988 as a solo act, playing keyboards and singing at some of Ft.

Lauderdale's most upscale establishments along Las Olas Boulevard. That high profile exposure led to Jeffrey opening for ex-"Loving Spoonful" member John Sebastian at the famed "Musicians Exchange."

He went on to record with Dionne Warwick and the Birds for the A.I.D.S. benefit album "Legacy." Shortly afterwards, Jeffrey was invited to perform his well-liked original song "Don't Mind Feelin' Good" and "The Christmas Song" on several Miami television shows which have seen regular airplay since 1990. Jeffrey has also sung regularly at professional sporting events such as basketball, football, and hockey games.

Jeffrey's career has taken him all over the world. Performing in England, Germany, most of the Caribbean and throughout the United States including the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta, GA. Inevitably his talent and experience have brought him to Las Vegas. While pursuing a publishing career for his vast library of original music, Jeffrey continues to perform at industry showcases, nightclubs, casinos, and on major cruise lines.
