As a child, Liz thought the folk guitar player at the local library was the coolest. She would become mesmerized by the stories she sang. There was truth in it, she thought. Soon after, Liz started attending USDAN center of performing arts in New York, and studied music. She would go home and play songs for her older brother Jorge and theyd study the back of Beatles and Simon and Garfunkel albums. After extensive jazz study, Liz started playing duets in clubs on Long Island and Manhattan, which eventually lead her to her first recognition. Since then, she has played in many venues in California, South America, and Europe. Michael Mostert, owner of California Professional Audio says, shes the complete package, she writes her own songs, alluring vocal style, accomplished guitarist, sexy and fun. We are proud to endorse her and she was featured as Artist of the Month on our web site calproaudio.com. Due to the overwhelming demand, she was featured for two consecutive months. I would like to inspire others and collaborate with artists that I admire. I would like to continue contributing and working with the T.V. and film community. Perhaps tour soon, she explains.
