Field recording captured during the morning hours in the Din Dang district of Bangkok, Thailand. 1 MP3 Songs NEW AGE: Nature, NEW AGE: Meditation Details: BANGKOK BIRDS Field recording captured during the morning hours in the Din Dang district of Bangkok, Thailand. A multi-layered listening experience. Running time: 46:00 min Waking up in the Ding Dang district of Bangkok is no different than waking up in a jungle. It is a jungle, a 21st century jungle. There's just as much concrete as there is green, just as many people as there are trees. It's overgrown and overpopulated. It's dense, it's thick and it's unruly. The air is wet like a sauna, it drips from the leaves and clings to your skin. The forest grows up and out and so do the buildings. It sounds like a gigantic Asian aviary. When your eyes are closed it's hard to believe you're smack dab in the middle of a city the size of New York. It's like a wildlife refuge that's powered by 2-stroke engines, papaya salad and chilies. The birds are up with the sun. They flutter about like flying Buddhas, like kings, like enlightened beings tossing around Zen koans from wing to wing. The birds of Thailand are colorful and vocal. They chirp and sing and coo and caw. Song birds are all over the place. Some sing directly into the mic and some create a racket from far away. Mysterious sounds drift up from the bush. Asian crows and other native birds fly by as if they are on their way to some little known conference in the sky. Roosters gather in the way back. Who knows what's gotten into them but they sure sound like they got a story to tell, full of personality with a charming and impeccably timed wail. You'd have to be a serious bird watcher to identify all of what's happening. But you don't have to be one to appreciate it. Bangkok Birds is a field recording that captures the sound of a whole bunch of exotic birds in their natural environment. Golden Flower Media field recordings are professionally recorded, edited and mastered. Each compact disc is one contiguous track designed to retain the organic feel of the environment it was recorded in and maintain the nature of the sounds. Field recordings provide a unique atmosphere. They are a little different from meditation music, yoga music, relaxation music, background music or ambient music. The listening experience is similar in many ways, but they tend to feel a bit more like traveling. It's refreshing to travel somewhere new and it's just as refreshing to hear the sounds from somewhere new. Listening, like traveling, is an adventure. The more you pay attention to the nuances the more exciting it is. The more you get caught up in that foreign place the more you want to stay. Packaged in eco-friendly slim cshell with full color printing on disc. People who are interested in Brian Eno alan lomax should consider this download.
