Native from the city of Caracas, Miguel incorporates aboriginal instruments and rhythms from Latin America into his pop-rock influenced songs. His "Venezuelan Folk Alternative" is a well balanced mix of overdriven electric guitars with the sounds of native instruments like the four stringed guitar called "Cuatro", or the sea shell horns named "Guaruras". As a singer-songwriter, Miguel's lyrics reflect the reality of immigration and social issues within an unique framework of his trademark nature related metaphors and conservationist themes.
