Details: With a blend of catchy pop-rock beats and heart-felt lyrics, Gary Sullivan creates the kind of song the listener not only can sing along with, but can relate to. His music has been compared to Matchbox 20, Sugar Ray, and Fastball. Lyrically, he has been compared to the likes of Pete Yorn, Lifehouse, and the Goo Goo Dolls. The greatest compliment I can receive as a songwriter, is when someone comes to me and says- I have been there, I know exactly how that feels. There is no better feeling in the world then to know someone not only enjoyed your song, but identified with it." -Gary Sullivan Influenced by everything from hair bands and alternative, to pop-rock mainstays, he has always been inspired most by the bands that appeal to the everyman. Some influences include Oasis, Matchbox 20, The Goo Goo Dolls, and Lifehouse. The journey began back in the late 90s, when Gary started to write music and put together a make-shift home studio. Over the last few years he has been continuing to refine the art of writing, playing, and recording. Learning to hone his guitar, bass, and piano skills, as well as the skills needed to record and produce. Recently, Gary created a buzz online when his song Starting Over was selected as a finalist in TagWorlds Snakes on a Plane movie soundtrack contest. Out of close to 500 entries, he finished in the top 25 in fan voting. He then moved on to the final round, where his song was screened by New Line Cinema. He also finished 72nd in fan voting out of thousands of entries and moved on to the Quarterfinals of 2007's Lollapalooza Last Band Standing contest. He then had his song screened by a celebrity panel that included Perry Farrell (Jane's Addiction/Lollapalooza founder) and Granny Foundation members.
