Those who know how to appreciate his style are automatically part of his tropical, sun-bathed clan. The repertoire included in his first CD (Guayabera y Anlogos), where he plays all instruments, are sensual and relaxing themes that at the same time entice you to dance along the sea shore holding a pia colada; perhaps this is because they were inspired by the oceanic aroma of Margarita Island and also on his favorite artists: Brian Eno, Tito Rodriguez, Ensemble Gurrufu, Orbital, Caf Tacuba, U2, Ruben Blades and traditional Venezuelan rhythms. This CD also features the valuable contribution of guest musicians such as Otto Aristiguieta, Carlos Badiola, Ismael Reyes among others. The music of Tribu Ultravioleta, predominating in percussion, electronica, guitar and Caribbean flavor is for everyone, without labeling a target audience; its simply the evolution of something Latin. The concept of Guayabera y Anlogos is to recreate sensations, reviving the nostalgia of a reality perceived from afar. Tribu Ultravioleta knows how to impregnate space with a musical style that becomes excellent company whichever the place. With a sensitive melody you can feel the breeze at sunset in a spectacular beach, and later, with a faster rhythm that merges different styles, you feel as if youre driving through an autochthonous Latin town, heading home. Jos describes his music as sweet n sour with an artisan touch, and in the song Almojbana which appears in the CD Chill Out Venezuela one can perceive the susceptible, adventurous, fun and intellectual sense of its composer; but the rest of the musical pieces: Disco Music, Hyperson, Suite Tovaruguense, La Playa, etc should not be forgotten since once you listen to them, they remain forever tattooed in your memory. People who are interested in Orbital Brian Eno Ensemble Gurrufio should consider this download.
