Their music is a reflection of experiences and events that have surrounded them as they journey through life. Big Smiley (Martin Johnson Sr.) was born in Los Angeles, CA, he moved to Shreveport, LA at a young age with his family, which was headed by his single mother (he grew up in the Cedar Grove area). He grew up listening to artist such as Parliament/Funkadelic, The GAP Band, and Bootsy Collins. When rap music came into the mainstream, he became a rap enthusiast. Big Smiley, at the age of 13, started making music with his brothers, he eventually stepped out on his own to start his own trucking company and to found LoDown Records, where he is not only the CEO, he is also an artist on the label. LOC (Antonio Holmes) was born and raised in Shreveport, LA with his parents and siblings (he grew up in both the Water Side and Cherokee Park areas). LOC's musical influences include Cameo, Cee-Bo, Whoodini, and Kool Moe Dee. He started rapping at the early age of 14. LOC is the original founder of 400 Block Records, and is currently the CEO of Rich Rollin Productions, where he is also an artist on the label. When the two come together, you are served up with tracks that makes you wanna get your 'party on', and tracks that you can sit back and 'chill to'. The "Deep In Tha Game" CD continues to get rave reviews from across the country; from all who hears it. When the CD was first released during a CD release party, the CD was a sellout hit. With their original sound Tru PitBulls are sure to keep rap fans from 18 to 80, vibing from beginning to end.
