Among the Wimbum tribe of Cameroon, most of the fables and folktales are about animals. It is said that, there is a distinct animal world where animals live and rule their kingdom with laws and customs. One animal that is prevalent in their folklore is Takwe, the fox. Takwe is a trickster and enjoys playing pranks on other animals and is so good at his craft that he usually ends up outsmarting the other animals. In this fable "How the Dog Became a Domestic Animal," fox commits a crime by violating one of the rules of the animal kingdom. He is caught and has to be punished. See what his crime is and how he tries to trick the always gullible dog to take the blame for him. Will Takwe the fox succeed? Find out in this exciting fable loved by both children and adults.
