Websites from Dishonest Thieves! Dear friend, Unless you have been under a rock, you must have faced those cyber thieves one or the other time. If not, either you are extremely lucky, or are absolutely ignorant of the theft going on behind your back (which could cost you dear in near future). Do you know that while you are sitting here, thieves are visiting your websites just like normal visitors and: a) Stealing your entire webpages, including design and graphics! This could be done as easily as clicking on File, then Save As, or simply by copying the source code of the webpage. Believe it or not, most web browsers offer tools to let users view the source code of any website! b) Scrapping your contact email addresses from your website and spamming you. If you have ever wondered at the sudden flood of spam invading your otherwise clean inbox, it could well be the handiwork of these thieves! c) Worse, they could actually be stealing your products for free! I am not going into any detail on how this could be done, since I do not want any more thieves than there are already, but just to let you know, it is very easy to do just by looking at the page source code! Would you want these thieves to go scot-free? Nope. It is time you protect your online business from them. It is just like protecting your house from burglars. Just as you use lock and key to defend your house from thieves, you would be using: HTMLLockDown Webpage Protector Software to defend your websites from those cyber-thieves! Okay, so what can this software actually do for you? Here are just a shortlist of the awesome features of this software: a) It does not matter what markup or coding you use to create your websites. Whether it contains HTML, JavaScript, VBscript, Text, Graphics, or Hyperlinks, HTMLLockDown can protect them all! b) The most common way to steal text from websites is by copying text via right mouse click. HTMLLockDown Webpage Protector totally disables right-mouse click! c) But wait, there are smarter thieves who can still steal your information by using keyword shortcuts such as CTRL+A and CTRL+C. Good news is that HTMLLockDown will protect your websites from these smart thieves too, because along with disabling right mouse click, it also disables text selection! Powerful, is not it? But wait. There is a lot more it can do for you: d) If your page is protected through the HTMLLockDown Webpage Protector software, thieves would neither be able to save your webpage offline nor print it out! e) If you have done or paid for any significant web design work, you know how much time, energy and money it takes to create a unique and professional-looking website. HTMLLockDown Webpage Protector software make sure your webpages retain their value and do not suddenly multiply all over the web - making it look like you have stolen the design of someone else! What more do you expect from HTMLLockDown Webpage Protector? = Do you want to password-protect one or more webpages? = Do you want to prevent people from looking at the source code of your website? = Do you want to protect your download pages from digital theft? = Do you want to prevent your website URLs from showing up in the address bar of the browser?
