Singer/songwriter/guitar slinger Henri Nigro has been performing for 35 years in Massachusetts, New England, and up and down the East Coast of the USA. He's played with Spider John Koerner, opened for James Cotton, Conway Twitty, Cornelius Bros and Sister Rose, Mimi Fariña, and a host of others. Currently he's playing with Folk/Americana Legend Thea Hopkins as well as 'the Black Cats', a Westboro-based blues band, a Gospel Band called 'Gone South' with Boston based veteran singer Sally Sweitzer, and various other country and blues bands around the Northeast. Quotes: from the great Warren Zevon "his knowledge of the complete american vernacular, ...a little bit of a half crazed musicologist. If Ry Cooder could actually sing really well, there's a little bit of that quality of being willing to take a bit from here and a bit from there. It's both inside the idiom of American music and about the idiom of American music. It was very satisfying". From Noisehead.com "I feel like I'm on a Texas highway ready to rob a bank with my trappy girlfriend". From MP3.com "Sounds like it was recorded in the basement of Big Pink".
