Details: I grew up in Brooklyn, New York, and my family moved across the river to Jersey City, New Jersey. As I got older I realized I had a good voice. I could imitate nearly everything I heard. In High School I sang with a Doo-Wop group. We played a lot of venues in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. I was musical director. I created the arrangements either scoring new material from popular songs, or reworking acappella classics. We became an award winning group, and recorded background vocals for Billy Joel. When we finally parted ways I kept singing on my own. One night I tuned in Showtime at the Apollo - the original musical competition show. It dawned on me, I should give this a try. I called the Theater, and went to open auditions the next day. Usually you have to wait months for a callback, but they asked if I could be there the following night, and by the end of that evening (in a field of 24 contestants) the audience was chanting my name. I sang Reasons by Earth, Wind Fire, an ultimate R&B classic. I appeared there so many times by invitation over the next several years that my nickname became Mr. Reasons. A record company took an interest in me at that point, and I started writing. The deal went sour, but that didn't deter me. My confidence in my writing has grown. And its backed by an appreciation of myself as a great singer. The songs on this album are all my own original work. Written, produced and sung by me - including the background vocals. I hope you like it.
