Details: ...legends speak of a man who chased and chased a tiny miniature purple marble across the ponds and fields, through the wal-mart parking lots and rode through the interstate highways...propelled by a unique gravity that could only be described as gravysexylicious! the man...so caught up with chasing this marble lost sight of it...and discovered that the marble was actually chasing him! hoping to rip him to shreds, to tear him limb from limb like a sugar-coated gummy worm on a warm summer day. too soon the marble and the man became friends, and got married in the farthest depths of the ocean inside a clam. and had a baby boy, who, like the man and the marble... started chasing something that originally chased him...the chaser and the chasee.
