Michael Harmon and David Knight produced the Addictions album, supported by the famous record producer, Beau Hill. Addictions is a major label quality CD produced without major label support. A Truly Addictive CD The Addictions songs are so catchy; it is easy to get hooked on to the album. Flynsolo therefore dedicated the entire Addictions album to people recovering from any type of addiction. Everyone owns some sort of addiction, said David Knight, who is the driving force behind Flynsolo. Multi-Cultural Project Recording sessions took place in twelve recording studios, spanning the United States, Canada, and Europe. The distinct sound of Addictions is the result of myriad collaborations with artists all over the world. The Power Behind Flynsolo Several award winning songwriters contributed to this amazing album with Beau Hill having a history of writing top 40 Billboard hits. Keyboardist and bassist Jon Connor was recruited after working with David Knight on a previous project, along with Tony Rogers, orchestral director, who directed live orchestral sessions for the Flynsolo project. All-Star Roster of Guest Appearances In addition, one can expect guest appearances by some of the most well-respected and prolific musicians in the music industry. To name a few: Liberty DeVitto wrote elaborate drum parts for the entire Addictions album. DeVitto is best known as the drummer who Billy Joel chose to work with for more than thirty years. In addition, DeVitto worked with artists, such as Paul McCartney, Mick Jagger, Elton John, Meat Loaf, Chuck Berry, John Waite, Mick Jones, Carley Simon, Roger Daltrey, Stevie Nicks, Cyndi Lauper, and The Carpenters. Vocalist and guitar player Spencer Gibb (yep, the son of Robin Gibb) performed on three Addictions songs. While he was touring with his band 54 Seconds in the US, Spencer Gibb stopped at the Flynsolos record studio to record his fabulous performances. George Marinelli plays the guitar in most of the Addictions tracks. George is a leading Nashville session player who used to play guitar with Bruce Hornsby and the Range. He is also well-known for his work with blueswoman Bonnie Raitt, a nine-time Grammy winner. George holds a 12 year tenure with Bonnie Raitt. In addition, he performed and recorded with artists, like Peter Cetera, Dixie Chicks, James Taylor, Willie Nelson, Billy and the Beaters, Faith Hill, Vince Gill, Donna Summer, Reba McEntire, and Dolly Parton. Dr. Mike Deasy, one of the most recorded guitarists in the history of music, presents unique lyrics and melodies on the Addictions album. Deasys guitar play can be heard on many hit albums from the 50s, 60s, 70s, 80s, and beyond. He worked with artists, such as George Harrison, Elvis Presley, Joe Cocker, Elton John, Ringo Star, The Byrds, Little Richard, Kenny Rogers, Cher, Diana Ross, The Beach Boys, Dianne Warwick, Michael Jackson, Billy Joel, Frank Sinatra, Barbara Streisand, and Simon and Garfunkle. Jay Davidson plays sax, piano, and leslie organ in several Addictions tracks. How the Story Began Flynsolo developed from the remnants of a previous incarnation Forcrynoutloud, formed in 1998. In their self-titled debut, the band quickly established a trademark sound and added covers of songs by the Beatles, John Lennon, and the Youngbloods. In March 2002, founding member David Knight decided to record a follow-up effort, bringing studio musicians together with a fresh approach and a new name:
