Realizing that he had a gift to music he self-taught himself to compose his first piece titled Glance consisting of piano and accompanied strings. October 1997 saw the release of his first album Carpe Diem. At this time he began playing live as a regular at Universal Studios. This strong release demonstrated the musical abilities of Troy and had been very well received by fans, selling between 50-100 CDs per performance. Carpe Diem is now in its 5th pressing. August of 1998 Maturo released a second album titled Forever. With adding the Irvine Spectrum to his performance schedule he produced a following for his music. Again, this album was loved by all ages and targeted all demographics. Troy found that his music was an inspiration for his fans and received many requests for addition purchases and letters of praise and appreciation. Forever is now in its 3rd pressing. With the success of Carpe Diem and Forever Troy continued to pursue his love for music and in 2002 released a third album titled Sanctuary. Throughout the years as a solo artist he has proved that he has a gift for composing, producing and recording. Sanctuary is now in its 2nd pressing. Shortly after the release of the third album, Troy decided to take a sabbatical and concentrate on a new found family life that had began with his wife and newborn daughter. Music still had a place for him but at this time it was necessary to take a small break. Now in 2008 Troy felt it time to reestablish his career in the music industry. With a 6 year break his passion has grown stronger and goals have become higher. Wanting to reach more listeners and fans he has began working on the 4th album which will be released in mid 2008 and titled Infinity. He feels that this release will prove to be more successful and stronger than the previous albums. Along with the new album Troy has embarked on a side-project which consists of a more dance experimental style of music called Maturo-ALT. Maturo is expected to reach new heights in the future.
