Harp + guitar - a "not quite twin" sister singer-songwriter duo. A mix of adventurous harp playing, fingerstyle guitar, and electrifying vocal harmonies influenced by Tori Amos, Crosby Stills Nash and a dash of Fiona Apple. 12 MP3 Songs POP: Pop/Rock, ROCK: Folk Rock Show all album songs: The Callen Sisters Songs Details: With their unique instrumentation (harp and guitar), soaring vocal harmonies, and unforgettable original songs, The Callen Sisters make an impact from the first listen. More than a singer-songwriter duo, they are family, friends, and musical partners. They share each others lives, a closeness that informs their music and that is displayed to stirring effect on their self-titled debut album, which stands as a testament of shared experience, loss, and love. Raised in Westport, Massachusetts, and Saratoga Springs, New York, The Callen Sisters are Jessa Callen (harp and vocals, age 25) and Beth Callen (guitar and vocals, age 23). Playing and writing songs together since childhood, by high school, the girls were performing live as a duo at venues throughout Saratoga Springs and the Capital Region open mic nights, coffee shops (such as the legendary Caff Lena), special events hosted by local businesses and community organizations, street busking during the crowded Saratoga summer months, and wherever else they could. Audience reaction has always been ecstatic. Curiosity is naturally directed towards the harp, an unusual instrument in a folk context, but once audiences hear the interplay of harp and guitar, they never forget it. The sisters both enrolled at SUNY Purchase and socialized in the same musical circle. Their closeness increased and their music horizons expanded as the result of a series of family losses. First in 2003, their aunt, Karen, was suddenly taken by cancer. The following year, they lost their mother, Kim, who had been battling cancer for 11 years. Their grandmother followed her two daughters in 2005. The two sought refuge in each other and in their music, gaining strength and perspective from their experiences. The sisters' personal tragedies have earned them a deep compassion for others and a realization that life must be lived to the fullest each day qualities that are poignantly conveyed in their music. Their self-titled debut album, produced and arranged by Dan Castellani, displays the dynamic and dramatic range of The Callen Sisters songwriting and vocal skills. The songs on The Callen Sisters' debut record deal with the personal experiences, societal insights, and raw emotions of both sisters. The album's 12 original songs (each sister wrote six songs apiece) include the plaintive and lilting Like You, written and sung by Beth, and the haunting and rich Irrelevant, written and sung by Jessa. The sweetness of Lullaby shows the lighter side of Jessa's writing, while Anomie reveals the edgy side of Beth. The Callen Sisters are currently living in the New York City metro area, playing in such legendary clubs as The Bitter End and The Knitting Factory. Their performances have garnered them positive write-ups in several press outlets. Jessa and Beth are looking forward to connecting with people through their music with the release of their debut album and their upcoming tour.
