Canadian born singer-songwriter with influences from Sheryl Crow and Sarah McLachlan. 11 MP3 Songs

POP: Folkly Pop, ROCK: Folk Rock Details: Canadian born singer-songwriter Brenda Alguire began her musical training with private classical piano lessons at the age of seven, with the Royal Conservatory of Canada. At the age of 12 Brenda discovered that she loved to write songs. She began singing original songs with her sister throughout her junior high and teen years. She played in various bands, including a one year job with a club/bar band. These experiences helped develop her own unique singing and playing style, building on her early formal training. Brenda added experimentation and discovery, observation, seminars, listening and learning from other musicians to further her musical skills. In the early 90s Brenda began to intentionally spend time working on developing the craft of songwriting. Her first song to be published was translated into German and recorded in Germany in 1996. In 1997 she met a gifted producer/publisher in Toronto who was instrumental in getting 12 songs recorded by various independent artists and published in Canada. Several of Brendas songs have received radio airplay and national television exposure in Canada. After several years of honing her musical and writing skills Brenda decided it was time to record her first solo album. She teamed up with Chicago-based producer, Jimmy Riley, releasing No Small Wonder in October 2006. Check out Brenda's Myspace at: myspace.com/brendaalguire.

ABOUT THE SONGS Shantytown... These were my daily observations of life while living in a third world country. I cried when I wrote this song. If I Run... This song is about the longing and search for truth. No Small Wonder... The song says it all. Blue Water Bridge... This song is about going on vacation. It makes me smile. Refugee In Mourning... I saw a photo and article on the front page of The USA Today back in 98 and it broke my heart. Words Over Wine... A few words of wisdom that need passing along. A Good Name... I wrote this song for our son, Nate. It was inspired by Proverbs

22:1. Dont Want Us To Fight... I pray that people everywhere will be brave enough to say this, and then do something about it. Long Way Around... Id like to live more of my life this way. Not Letting You Go... I wrote this song for a friend. May courage and hope be found in each of us to keep believing that the dawn will yet come. Nothing Like the Love... This song is pure joy to sing.
