Experience? What comes to mind when you hear JD perform? Music sung the way you remember it, smooth, jazzy and sophisticated. Now we call it old-school but back then it was just good music. JDs lyrical style and rich vocal tones bring back those memories of an era when music felt good and male vocalists ruled the airwaves. JD comes from a musical family and has been singing as long as he can remember. It was always a part of him and something he loves to do. In the early 1990s his professional career began to take shape. He sang at various music venues around the D.C. area like Mr. Henrys, Martins Crosswinds and Howard Universitys Blackburn Center, to name a few. Like many others before him, JD took up the challenge of performing at the Apollo Theater and learned much from the experience to further shape his career. All of this has lead up to what is now known as The JD Experience. What is the JD Experience? Its that special feeling you get when you hear JD perform live. JD has the rare ability to make you feel something inside yourself. He makes you remember what good music sounded like, what male R&B vocalist were known for.
