Being fascinated with the sounds produced by synthesizers at the time, he by trial and error learned how sounds were made created with general subtractive synthesis. Kevin has made many songs through the years, learning to define a unique style. With influences ranging from industrial to death metal, to pop and psytrance, he has found a way to blend aggressiveness with harmonic melodies, structure within unorthodoxed arrangements...allowing the listener to experience a range of emotions within one song. Formerly with Reno's industrial rock outfit Kill Kelly, Kevin now strives to penetrate the electronic music scene throughout the world with Psilogod. This will be the epitome of his efforts and sound he wishes to share with the world.
