Details: "Listening to Tanja Solnik sing is like being held. Her voice is so extraordinarily lovely, her songs so tender that many listeners will be moved to tears." - Moment Magazine "These songs are tender and gentle, exhibiting a real sweetness that's often painfully absent from many contemporary recordings." - School Library Journal "Stunningly gorgeous" - Billboard Magazine Tanja Solnik has been singing folk and international music since her childhood. By the age of eight, she had joined her first performer's union and was singing almost nightly. She soon appeared on "The Ed Sullivan Show", Mike Douglas, the John Gary Show, Jeanne Dixon and the the "Today Show"; and later became a regular on NBC's ground breaking children's show,"Take A Giant Step". As a young adult, she recorded several singles in Italy, along with a movie themesong; she also recorded a French language version of "Hey Mickey" for Saban Records during that time period. While living in Los Angeles, she combined studio singing, live performances and song writing. Later, she began cantorial studies with the incomparable Cantor Allan Michelson. Around the time she moved to Nashville, she began her own record company and co-produced and recorded two award-winning albums with Jim Hershman and Gary Nesteruk. She still lives in Nashville, where she spends her time working on several long range musical projects - when her role as "soccer mom" permits.
