Mind expanding think tank progressive house vs. electronica 10 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: House, ELECTRONIC: Dance Details: From beginning to end this engrossing electronica album is a seamless mix of progressive and mind-bending productions that arc an incredible music journey spanning 2 1/2 years time. Geared down to 127 beats-per-minute has been described as a darker and more dreamy excursion than the previous album: it hits a groove after the first two minutes and rides out to the end - fading-out beats now and then for only the most ethereal of bridges. The album sweeps the listener from the start with "Awakening" and "Dreamstate" through a collection of melancholic yet visionary tracks that are tethered by a gratifying mix and lo-bitrate percussion. The showcase of the album is a track called "Spill" of which the club version features lyrics about the world's relentless attack on the affairs of people - inspired in no small part by the movie Casablanca. The listening experience is capped by the unforgettable final track "Millions Of Moments": a bold progressive house/electronica anthem in the tradition of classic 16th-note analog arpeggios heard in Kraftwerk, funky bassline riffs, stuttering synths and simple drum programming. The tracks that fall in between carry the listener on a sonic voyage with the Rhodes electric piano and driving rhythms of "Flowline"; the enigmatic bridge and syncopated sampler work of "Solar Montage - a track inspired by the movie Solaris; the abstracted slowly evolving sound textures and naive synth arpeggios juxtaposed with pulsing bass rhythms in "Sensor"; and the progressive trance anthem "Lost To Beauty" that builds energy until it overloads the circuits. This is definitely an intelligent underground-flavor CD outside the mainstream channel - one that has been produced specifically for fans of modern electronica. If we cannot truly appreciate a full understanding of reality until stepping into the domain of the intangible, then A Million Other Moments is a surreal representation worthy of your excursion.
