SVSherlock@aol.com Biography Susan began playing the hammered dulcimer in October 1995 by imitating what she heard on recordings of traditional American and Celtic music. Over the years, her love of the instrument and traditional music has led her on a rich journey of performing and teaching. As evidenced in her recent solo recording Wateree, Susan's playing is recognized as creative, expressive and versatile. She has been invited to teach and perform at numerous festivals nationally and internationally including the Cork Dulcimer Festival in Ireland, South West Dulcimer Festival in Dewey, AZ, Queen City Dulcimer Festival in Charlotte, NC, Bay Path Dulcimer Festival in Northborough, MA, Cranberry Dulcimer Gathering, Binghamton, NY, and the Winston-Salem Dulcimer Festival in Winston-Salem NC, and She is also very active the local music community where she performs, teaches lessons, and conducts workshops. Susan is the founder of the Yorkville Music Weekend. The new festival emerged from Susan's desire to bring musicians together, to provide space for them to share their talents with each other and to perpetuate the tradition of folk music in her hometown of York, SC. The event, held the weekend before Thanksgiving, began with hammered dulcimers, but has expanded to include fiddle workshops and multi-instrument jams. Yorkville Music Weekend 2003 will be held November 21-22, featuring the Virginia based band No Strings Attached! Susan's solo recording Wateree was released June 2001 and features traditional American, international folk and original tunes. Joining her are Albert Dulin (fiddles, mandolin), Ken Kolodner (fiddle, hammered dulcimer), Dan Bright (fiddle), and Fred McKinney (guitar). Susan's original tune "Garden Caf Waltz" was recently chosen to be re-released

(August 2002) on an Oasis CD "Acoustic Sampler" recording and distributed to over 500 radio stations nation-wide. Susan is a performing member of Indiegrrl. Indiegrrl performers are both established and emerging acts, and the criterion for being chosen is simple: "the music must be exceptional, no matter where in your career you are." She is also a recipient of a Regional Artist Grant from the North Carolina Arts and Science Council, a member of Fiddle and Bow, World Folk Music Association, the Triangle Folk Society, the Baltimore Folk Society and serves on the Charlotte Folk Society Board of Directors. During the summer months Susan is a full-time musician and spends much of her time touring and performing. However, during the remainder of the year, she splits her time between music and her teaching career in Engineering. Susan has been a full time faculty member in Engineering Technology at York Technical College in Rock Hill SC since 1986 where she teaches August - May.
