Rock, folk, alternative country, blues, with powerful female vocals ... featuring songs "dear mary" and "good intentions," from the "dawson creek" soundtrack. 9 MP3 Songs POP: Folkly Pop, COUNTRY: Country Blues Details: Aryana's versatility and four octave range voice caught the interest of Greg Berlanti (creator of the show "Everwood") who took Aryana's Cd to Paul Stubin, producer of the hit TV series "Dawson's Creek." Stubin aired two songs from "FOOD FOR THOUGHT." track 5 "DEAR MARY" and track 9 "Good Intentions," in the fall of 1998. While Aryana was playin a show in L.A., actress Devon Odessa from "My So Called Life," was so moved after seeing Aryana sing, she gave Aryana's Cd to the producer of the movie she was currently working on. A remixed version of track 7 "Hear Where Your Heart Is," was chosen for the movies's second end title. The film later aired as a made for TV movie called "Graduation Week" on the lifetime channel for women. In the spring of 1999 Aryana was asked by Kevin Williamson, creator of the box office hit "Scream," to record a song written by Peter Stuart for the pilot of his new TV show "Wasteland." When the pilot was given the green light, Aryana's song "Glowing of the Moon," aired on the third episode, on ABC. The song was aired as feature music, and was preformed by two different actors in "Wasteland," and played three times though out the show. Track 2, "Lieing In Bed," was chosen for a love scene between Skeet Ulrich, from "As Good As It Gets" and Amanda Peet, from "Somethings Gotta Give," for the feature film "Track Down," about the true life story of Kevin Mitnick. In 2003 Aryana was invited to be on "Dawson Creek's" season six soundtrack. Track 5 "DEAR MARY" and track 1 "Good Intentions," both were put on the soundtrack, which was released in the summer of 2003. Over half of the songs from Aryana's debut CD "FOOD FOR THOUGHT," were placed in TV and Film. Which was written, preformed, recorded and produced by Aryana.
