It is an online phenomenon that allows people just like you to make money by finding, promoting, and helping to sell various products on the internet. You dont have to be an internet expert, you just have to follow some basic steps to find the right product, promote it, and earn a nice commission from each sale. Basically, affiliate programs are all about selling somebody elses product and earning money from each item you sell. The other person benefits by having you help to sell their product and they are willing to pay you each time you succeed. You benefit, of course, by pocketing that commission. And the more you sell, the more you make. Its really that simple.
